ProEther provides a safe, secure and flexible way for oil & gas companies to manage your business systems, without the need for an internal IT department.

ProEther has been designed specifically for oil & gas companies, with remote working practices and multinational offices in mind. It provides access to your personalised desktop from any computer, anywhere in the world; all you need is an internet connection. All of your applications and programmes used on a day-to-day basis are fully managed by Progressive.

We can offer a totally flexible solution to meet your needs today, and as you grow. Options include Microsoft Office, SunSystems for finance and Infor EAM for procurement, inventory and maintenance management. Our solutions are tailored for joint venture accounting, AFE management and supply chain management along with our industry leading reporting pack for all aspects of an oil & gas company – it really is oil & gas in a box!.

Because Progressive knows the business of oil & gas, we understand the security threats our clients face. Our servers are hosted within Europe's leading level 3+ datacentre, with robust offsite backups ensuring systems are provided to the standards required within the oil & gas sector.

With additional features including secure data rooms for deals, joint venture partners and auditors, multiple user access levels and both hardware and software maintenance, you can concentrate on growing your business with the confidence that your IT infrastructure is in expert hands. We can even place one of our consultants with you to assist with financial, procurement and asset management processes, to respond to challenges as they arise anywhere in the world.

ProEther is available for a set monthly fee, with no upfront capital cost for either software or hardware.

ProEther can be set up ready for your use within one week.

HOW IT WORKS

As a young E&P company, you want to stay focused on your core business, not managing your back office functions. However, to manage costs, track resources and attract investment, you need to manage your information, assets and people effectively.

Or, as a larger E&P company, you are setting up exploration in a new area. There is no guarantee of how long you will be there, but you want to keep track of everything whilst you are.

Instead of a costly implementation of IT solutions, ProEther provides a solution to host systems and deliver expertise to cover the business activities you need. Using industry best practice, we will provide the systems you need as a private cloud solution, so you don't need to buy or transport costly IT hardware. We can also help you with the expertise you need to manage the information, or integrate the systems to your Headquarters systems.

All of this can be set up to suit your needs in a matter of weeks, with low set up costs and the ability to scale up and down to match your ongoing requirements.
